GLOBAL ART FORUM: I AM NOT A ROBOT | SINGAPORE

Global Art Forum: I Am Not a Robot is the latest in a series of events that explore the power, paranoia and potentials of automation. Previous iterations took place at Dubai Design District in February, and at Art Dubai in March of this year. The Singapore edition is a partnership between Global Art Forum and ArtScience Museum, comprising a performance (20 Sep), a three-day conference (21–23 Sep), and a screening programme (13 Sep onwards). I Am Not a Robot will investigate the opportunities, complexities and trepidations of artificial intelligence, machine learning, networked systems and robotics.

The implications of automation run through our lives today and tomorrow: from algorithmic policy-making, social credit scores and gene editing. It is said that automation, more than any other factor, will fundamentally alter our working lives. We've already heard the first AI composed pop song and can read the first AI authored short story. Where does this all leave the fate of the human in a machine intelligent future? And what exactly are those machines saying about us behind our backs?

CONVERSATIONS

Friday–Sunday

| 21–23 Sep

I Am Not a Robot invites audiences to reflect upon the true meaning of big data, automation and artificial intelligence in our current digital age. Through the work and ideas of artists, curators, designers, journalists, writers, scientists, technologists and filmmakers, I Am Not a Robot reveals how the widespread intricacies of automation are transforming our future. This three-day conference discusses Singapore's approach to AI, the future of work in an age of automation, cultural and artistic approaches to AI, big data and robotics, and depictions of robots and synthetic beings in cinema.

Speakers include Shumon Basar, Noah Raford, Marlies Wirth, Jessica Bland, Ania Soliman, Wong Tien Yin, Laurence Liew, Lim Sun Sun, Wong Choon Yue, David Hsu, Sara M. Watson, Wesley Goatley, Louis-Philippe Demers, Volker H. Schmidt, Lee Chor Pharn, Cheryl Chung and more.

ARTSCIENCE ON SCREEN

From 13 Sep

In the future, how will we perceive ourselves in relation to the beings that surround us? Will we still feel a sense of belonging based on gender, religious, ethnic or social groupings? Or will we re-tune our perceptive systems to understand each other as belonging to the tribe of humans, automatons or synthetic intelligent beings? A short film programme, featuring Seam by Rajeev Dassani and Elan Dassani, Last Days of the Man of Tomorrow by Fadi Baki Fdz and Pumzi by Wanuri Kahiu, ponders these questions.

Pumzi and Last Days of Man of Tomorrow were first screened by Cinema Akil for Global Art Forum: I Am Not A Robot in Dubai, March 2018.
